Mission

The D’Kyr-class is the primary combat cruiser of the mid-22nd century Vulcan fleet. Its purpose is to defend Vulcan territories from aggressive species such as the Andorians and Klingons.

Background

The D’Kyr is an improved variant of the Sh’ran-class starship. Using data gathered by the Sh’ran-class combat cruisers, the Vulcan High Command commissioned the D’Kyr-class to address the less-than-optimal sublight performance of the Sh’ran, as well as the Sh’ran’s lack of an emergency separation system.

Features

The D’Kyr features the typical Vulcan circular ring-shaped warp drive, capable of achieving speeds of up to warp 7, among the fastest of ships in the 22nd century. In addition to its great speed, the D’Kyr possesses state-of-the-art sensors and weapons, as well as a prototype deflector shield capable of withering the most punishing weapon attacks.

The D’Kyr possess a faster sublight drive than its contemporary the Sh’ran, as well as an emergency detachable auxiliary vessel, the D’Kyr Support Ship. Though technically an armored transport vessel, the Tal’Kyr-class Support Ship is a fully combat-capable starship in its own right, possessing adequate beam and missile weapons with a shield system as powerful as the D’Kyr itself and a warp drive capable of speeds as high as warp factor 6.
